Informational tips:

- The River Wey Navigation is the oldest navigation in the UK dating from 1653AD.
- It is also the most southerly inland marina in the UK.
- Pyrford Marina is approximately 2.5 hours cruising from the River Thames. (3 un-manned locks and 1 manned lock).
- The marina is approximately 6 hours cruising from Guildford town centre with all of the major stores and cinemas etc. that a major town can offer.
- A further 2-hour cruise will take you to the end of the navigation at Godalming.
- The nearest railway station is West Byfleet. This will take you to Waterloo in London.
- The A3 and M25 are only a couple of miles away providing easy access north, south, east and west.
- There are local shops in Pyrford Village, with larger supermarkets in West Byfleet and Brooklands.
- There are Pubs/Restaurants within easy cruising distance. For example, The New Inn at Send is only 2.5 hours away, so can be reached for lunch, and then turn around and return back to your berth.
- There are quite a few taxi services that come to the marina. 01932 850850 is one.
- The nearest petrol station is in West Byfleet only 1.5 miles away.
- The River Wey is constructed out of River and Man Made Canal sections. Pyrford Marina is situated on a canal section, so if the river goes in to flood, it is still possible to cruise to Weybridge and back.
- If you are a golfer, the marina has 3 golf courses surrounding it, as well as a number of others that are only a short distance drive away. (Excuse the pun!)
